On Modelling Weather Indices and Pricing Weather Derivatives

Shuangze Liu, Australian National University

The weather has an enormous impact on business activities. The last five years has witnessed the rapid growth of the weather derivatives market to a remarkable level. The goal of this talk is to develop a new pricing approach for weather derivatives. We first review the background of weather derivatives, and then introduce our approach for analyzing and pricing weather derivatives.