Gunnar Carlsson
Stanford University, USA

The TDA User Experience

This talk will discuss methods for making TDA more easily usable, and methods we could develop which will turn it into a systematic tool for data analysis. Some of what we discuss will be inspired by the experience of adapting topology for use in other areas, such as number theory, and other aspects will be inspired from direct experience with various data sets from the biological realm. We will show numerous examples.